History of Bristol County.

THIS COUNTY was incorporated in 1685. This part of the State was called by the Indians "Pawcunnawcut," or "Pokanoket" The surface of the country is generally sandy and level, though occasionally rising into hills. It has a seacoast of considerable extent, marked with numerous headlands, and indented with frequent bays and small harbors. Many of the people of this County are engaged in Navigation. The business of whaling occupied many of the people in former years The city of New Bedford is called from this the "Whaling City." The County is now largely engaged in manufacturing. The principal stream is the Taunton River, which is navigable by coasting vessels, to Weir village in the city of Taunton, and by small flats as far as the Old Colony Iron Works, at the village of East Taunton, formerly known as Squauberry. It has two county towns—New Bedford and Taunton. There are 19 towns in this county, of which three, New Bedford, Taunton and Fall River, have been incorporated as cities. The population in 1837 was 58,182, in 1870. 102,902.

ACUSHNET.—This is a new town, being originally a part of Fair Haven. It was incorporated under the name of Acushnet, in 1860. The name was derived from the River Acushnet, which flows through it. There are two villages —Acushnet and Long Plains—in the town, each of them Post Offices. The village of Acushnet was one of the earliest settled parts of the old town of Dartmouth, being settled nearly 50 years earlier than New Bedford. It lies on both sides of the River, the east part being in Acushnet, the west in New Bedford. There are three meeting houses in the village, one Congregational, one Methodist, and one Friends The celebrated Dr. West, was settled here for many years. The Old Meeting House in which he preached, stood on the hill on the east side of the River. The grave-yard connected with it was one of the oldest in the state.

This village suffered severely when the British made their attack on New Bedford, several Dwelling Houses were burned by them. The land is generally level and fertile. The population in 1865 was 1,251; 1870, 1,132.

ATTLEBOROUGH.—This town is a part of what was originally known as "Rehoboth North Purchase." It was bought in 1661 by Capt. Thomas Willett, of Rehoboth, under authority of the court from Wamsitta, a Sachem of Pokanoket.

The first division of lands in the "North Purchase" was made in 1658, but was only of the meadows on the north of the town of Rehoboth. The first general division was granted by the proprietors in 1668. In 1669, soon after this division, Mr. John Woodcock and his Sons commenced the first settlement in the town. on the site of the old Hatch Tavern. He took of 300 acres for his farm. He built a Public House on the Bay Road, which was lisensed in 1670 by the court. He was shrewd, brave and hardy, and an implacable enemy of the Indians. His house was used as a garrison and was well-known as a place of Rendezvous in the great Indian War.

The inhabitants of "North Purchase" were incorporated into a township by the name of Attleborogh, in 1694. The first town meeting on record was held May 11th, 1696. March 22nd 1696-7, the town of Attleborough finding very few allowed to vote, ordered that "all the inhabitants and town-dwellers should have a right to vote in said meetings."

Wm. Blackstone was the first inhabitant of the "North Purchase," although not within the limits of the present town. He was also the first settler of Shawmut, now Boston; formerly called from him Blackstone's neck. In 1634, he sold the whole of his right in the Peninsula of Boston to its inhabitants, each of them paying him six shillings, and some more. With this purchase money he bought a stock of Cows, and removed to what is called "Study Hill," within the limits of the present town of Cumberland. R. I., but in what was part of the ancient town of Attleborough. Here he lived many years alone, and enjoyed his library and solitary walks. He died in 1675.

The name Daggett first appears in town, when one, John Daggett, purchased the Woodstock garrison of John Devotion, who bought it of Woodcock. The first mill in town was a corn mill, and built at the Falls by Joseph Daggett. In 1676, the Indians attacked Woodcock's garrison, as his house was called. His sons were at work in a field, near by which, the savages lay concealed; approaching, they fired on the sons, killing one, and the others fled to the garrison. To gratify their spite against the family, they cut off the head of the fallen son and stuck it on a pole; which they set on a hill in front of the house to aggravate the feelings of the family.

From this time Woodcock swore never to make peace with the Indians. Being a resolute man he hunted them like wild beasts, and many fell victims to his vengeance. A celebrated fight took place in the part of Attleborough, now Cumberland, R. I., on Sunday March 26th, 1676. Capt. Michael Pierce of Scituate, with 63 Englishmen and 20 Cape Indians, attacked a body of five-hundred Indians, and courageously pursued them when they began slowly to retreat; but there soon appeared another company of 400 Indians, who completely surrounded the English. Being thus attacked in front and rear, all hope of retreat was cut off. However they determined to fight to the last; not a single white man escaped, but the Indians lost about 300 Warriors. This was the greatest defeat of the Plymouth colony.

There was no seiteled minister for several years after the incorporation of the town. The first was Rev. Matthew Short, who was ordained Nov. 12th, 1712, and continued about 4 years. The second minister was Rev. Ebenezer White, a graduate of Harvard in 1703. He preached here eleven years, and died in the town Sept. 4th, 1726. Rev. Habijah Weld was the third minister, and continued pastor of Attleborough 55 years. At his death, only one of those were living who assisted at his settlement. In 1728, a new meeting house was built in town. The town continued one Parish till 1743, when it was divided by act of the Legislature. For eight years after the death of Mr. Weld, the town was without a minister. The first pastor of the 2nd Congregational Church, was Rev. Peter Thatcher.

BERKLEY.—This is a farming town, and is situated on the east side of the Taunton River, which divides it from Dighton. It was formerly a part of Dighton, and was incorporated in 1735. The celebrated Dighton Rock is within the limits of Berkley. A church was organized Nov. 2nd, 1737, and Rev. Saml. Tobey was the first pastor.

DARTMOUTH.—This town was incorporated in 1664, and formerly included within its limits, the present towns of Dartmouth, New Bedford, Fair Haven and Acushnet. It was originally purchased of the Indians by a party of 36 individuals, who met at Plymouth, Nov. 7th, 1652, and, by joint consent, made an equal division of the land. It would seem that but few of the original owners settled on this territory; but the land appears to have been taken up by a class of people not particularly identified with the Puritans, and many of them were Quakers from the government at Plymouth. The people of Dartmouth were great sufferers—owing to their scattered way of living—from loss of property by the Indians. During King Phillip's War the inhabitants of this town were completely dispersed, and it is probable most of the houses, except such as were used as garrisons, were destroyed. In 1665, the town was represented at the Old Colony Court, held at Plymouth, by John Russell.

Dartmouth is principally a fishing and farming town. The agricultural interests are quite important, there being many valuable farms within its limits. Ship building was formerly carried on quite largely. The manufacture of Salt was quite extensive.

DIGHTON.—This town was incorporated in 1712, previous to which time it formed a part of the town of Taunton. The celebrated "Dighton Rock"—the inscriptions on which have formed such a variety of speculations, is situated on the Berkley side of the River. It is sometimes called the "writing rock." Some have supposed that the inscriptions on these rocks are the work of Norwegian adventurers, who visited this cost about 1,000 of the Christian Era. Rev. Nathaniel Fisher was the first pastor, and was settled as pastor of the South Precinct of Taunton, in 1710, two years previous to the incorporation of the town. Mr. Fisher was settled in Dighton not far from fifty years.

EASTON.—This town, formery part of Taunton, was incorporated in 1725. It forms the North Eastern corner of Bristol Co. The village of Easton has become quite a manufacturing village. The "Ames Shovel Manufactory" has grown to be a very large establishment. In 1837, there were two Shovel Manufactories, employing about 84 hands; now this establishment alone employs upwards of 500. There are six churches in town, one Catholic, two Unitarian, two Methodist, and a Congregationalist. The late Rev. Dr. Sheldon, was pastor of the Orthodox Congregational Church, 60 years. He died at the advanced age of 81, having been settled when he was 21.

FAIR HAVEN.—This town was originally a part of Dartmouth, but was divided off with New Bedford in 1787, of which it remained a part until 1812, when they were made separate townships. It was again reduced in size by the formation of the town of Acushnet, out of its northern half in 1860. The village was settled in 1764, and is said to have derived its name from the beauty of its situation. This place in 1837 had 37 vessels employed in the whale fishery. During the Revolutionary War, on the night of Sept. 7th, 1778, the British troops made an attempt to distroy the village of Fair Haven, but were bravely repulsed by a small force of men under command of Maj. Israel Furing. The enemy had a day or two previously burnt houses, and distroyed a large amount of property in New Bedford.

FREETOWN.—This town was first settled in 1659, and incorporated in 1683. Assonet is the principal village. It is situated at the head of an inlet from Taunton River.

The Indian name was Assonet. The first minister was William Way, who was teacher here in 1704. There is some manufacturing here, but the principal business is agriculture.

MANSFIELD.—This town was originally a part of Norion; it was incorporated as a district town in 1770. Col. Ephraim Leonard was one of the most distinguishrd of the first settlers of this place; he built his house about two miles eastward of the Congregational Church in the center of the town. The Rev. Wm. White, the first minister, lived about one mile south of the meeting house. Nathan Williams, another of the first settlers, located his house where the tavern now stands. A number of families by the name of Wellman, had their houses about a half a mile south of the meeting house; Deacon Abial Leonard lived at the distance of about three miles. Benjamin, brother of Nathaniel Williams, lived about a mile north of the meeting house. These brothers owned lands extending to the Old Colony line. A family of Deans settled in the south part of the town; Dea Skinner in the western part. Familes by the name of Grover were among the early inhabitants. The town is well watered by the three principal branches of the Taunton River. The principal business of the town is the manufacture of Straw Hats and Bonnets, Hollow Ware, Casting, Cutleiy, Tacks, &c., and Farming.

NEW BEDFORD.—The Indian name of this town was "Acchusnutt" or "Acushnet." It was incorporated as a town in 1787, previous to which time it formed a part of the town of Dartmouth. At what time and by whom the settlement in the town was commenced is not exactly known. It is supposed, however, that the friends or quakers were the first inhabitants. The first settled minister appears to have been Rev. Samuel Hunt, who died about the year 1735; It is supposed he was ordained about 1700. The next minister was Rev. Richard Pierce; he was settled in 1735, and was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Cheever. Mr. Cheever was dismissed in 1759, and was succeeded by Rev. Samuel West, D. D., who was settled in 1761. The villages of New Bedford and Fair Haven on the opposite side of the river, were settled about the same time, 1764. The first house in New Bedford Village, (city) was built by Mr. John Louden, of Pembroke. The land on which the place is built, was owned by a Mr. Russell,

This being the family name of the Duke of Bedford, Mr. J. Rotch, one of the principal purchasers and settlers, declared that the place should go by the name of Bedford. It was afterwards called New Bedford, in consequence of their being another Bedford in the Commonwealth. Mr Rotch, a member of the Society of Friends, was a man of sagacity and enterprise. He speedily built a house, stores and wharves; and was joined by several associates. By his previous knowledge of the whaling business, which he had acquired in Nantucket, Mr. Rotch and his friends were enabled to carry on this business to great advantage, which has built up the city of New Bedford. By his peculiar address he procured first from the government of France, and then from that of Great Britain, the privilege of exporting Oil to these countries, duty free; which greatly increased his own and his neighbors profits.

New Bedford is a halfshire town of Bristol Co. and port of entry. The ground on which the city is built rises beautifully from the water, and as the town is approached from the water or Fair Haven side, presents a beautiful appearance. The harbor, though not easy of access, is capacious and well-secured from winds. It is connected with Fair Haven by a Wooden Bridge and Causeway about three-fourths of a mile in length.

During the Revolutionary War New Bedford was a place of resort for American Privateers. In order to destroy them, 4,000 British troops, under Gen. Gray, were landed upon Clark's Neck, the western boundary of the river at its mouth. From this point they marched to the town and burned houses, wharfs, &c., and destroyed a large amount of naval stores, provisions, shipping, &c.

The first Newspaper in New Bedford was printed and published by John Spooner, at his office near Rotch's wharf. It was called the Medley, or New Bedford Marine Journal. The first number was issued on Tuesday, Nov. 27th, 1792. The successor to the Medley was the Columbian Courier, Abraham Shermon, Jr., Printer and Publisher, at the four corners. This paper was issued Dec. 8th, 1799. and continued till March 1st, 1805. The New Bedford Mercury commenced Feb. 7th, 1807, and is consequently one of the oldest papers in New England.

On the 23d of September, 1815, one of the most disastrous gales in the history of New Bedford took place; commencing in the early part of the day, with the wind north-east, it hauled around into the south-east, blowing with increased violence and bringing in the sea with a flood tide, until it rose from ten to eleven feet higher than ever known before in the highest spring tide. This caused a general destruction to the wharfs, shipping, and the New Bedford and Fair Haven Bridge.

The first Baptist minister who preached statedly in New Bedford was Peleg Burroughs, pastor of the then called Dartmouth Church, now Tiverton. This church was formed 1686. Peleg Burroughs was ordained in 1780 over this church.

The New Bedford Lyceum is one of the oldest institutions of the kind in the country. The first meeting was held Nov. 19th, 1828. The "Friends' Academy" was founded by a number of the Society of Friends in 1810. This was for many years the only classical institution in New Bedford.

The population of New Bedford in 1790 was about 700; in 1796 the whole population of the township, which then included Fair Haven, was but 3,313. The population of the town by the census of 1870 was 21,325.

NORTON.—Norton was incorporated as a town in 1711. It was originally a part of Taunton, and, when incorporated, included in its limits the present towns of Easton and Mansfield. The first settler within the limits of the town was a cabin-boy named William Wetherell, who received a tract of land by the gift of his master, and built a house upon it in 1670. A settlement was made in 1696 by Geo. Leonard, Esq., a name which has been identified with much of the public and mechanical business of the town. He was led to the settlement by the discovery of iron ore. and finding water power suitable for its manufacture. Jan. 18th. 1710, a tax-bill of forty-two pounds was made for the erection of a meeting house. This house was probably erected in 1710. In 1752 a new meeting house was built..

The first recorded action in regard to schools was April 18th, 1719, when Mr. Thomas Skinner, sr., was chosen as to be schoolmaster, and his salary not to exceed two pounds for said quarter. For more than eighty years after the organization of the town, there was no school houses erected especially for the purpose. Most of the early schools were for boys,it being thought entirely unnecessary tha girls should be educated. The first female teacher, or school mistress, seems to have been employed in 1791, when an order was drawn to pay Patience Leach for teaching three weeks, at 3 shillings per week.

The first warrant for a town meeting on record, bears date Feb. 20th. 1718--19, and the meeting-house was the place appointed.

The town is very level, being one of the flattest of its size in the State. The principal manufactures are cotton goods, hollow-ware and castings, matches and Lumber.

RAYNHAM.—This town was formerly a part of Taunton, and was incorporated as a distinct town in 1731. It originally made a part of those lands known as Cohannet, in the Colony of New Plymouth. They were purchased of Massasoit, the Indian chief, by Elizabeth Pool and her associates. It appears the first settlement made in town was about the year 1650. The first meeting-house was built in 1730. At this period there were about thirty families in the place. The second meeting house was erected in 1771, nearly in the centre of the town. The first minister here was Rev. John Wales, this was in 1731. Mr. Wales died in 1765, and was succeeded by Rev. Peres Fobes, L. L. D., who was ordained in 1766.

The lands in Raynham are generally level, and the soil light. There are a number of ponds which produce water power. The "Fowling Pond," or, as it is sometimes called, "King Phillip's Fowling Pond," has become a thick swamp. King Philip is said to have had a hunting house on the northerly side of this pond. The Leonards built in 1652, the first forge in America, at a place now known as Anchor Forge, on the road from the centre to Taunton. Philip and these Leonards were very friendly, and when the war broke out (1675), he gave strict orders to the Indians not to hurt the Leonards.

REHOBOTH.—The original limits of this town were extensive, comprehending the present towns of Seekonk, Attleborough, Cumberland and New Providence, R. I., and part of Swansey and Barrington. The first purchase of land here was made of Massasoit, in 1641, comprehending a tract of land about ten miles square, embracing the present towns of Rehoboth, SeeKonk and Pawtucket. The first white settler in the town was William Blackstone, a non-conformist minister of England, who fled from persecution, and sought an asylum in the wilds of America. He was the first white man who lived on the peninsular, where the city of Boston now stands. He sold his lands on the pininsular in 1634, and probably moved to Rehoboth the next year. He was located in what is now Cumberland, R. I., on the rivor which bears his name. His house he called "Study Hill." His grave and the well he dug are still to be seen. Roger Williams, on his flight from Massachusetts, resided in Rehoboth for a short period. Rev. Samuel Newman may be considered the founder of Rehoboth. In 1644 he removed here with part of his church from Weymouth. The first meeting of the original planters to be found on record, is dated at "Weimouth, the 24th of the eighth month (October), 1643." The second meeting was held in Dec. following, when regulations were made as to planting corn. In 1645 they acknowledged themselves within the jurisdiction of the Plymouth Court. The present town of Rehoboth is formed from the Second Precinct of the ancient town. King Philip's war commenced in 1675, and Rehoboth, from its proximity to Mount Hope, the residence of Philip, was destined to suffer its full share in this war. The last of King Philip's generals, Annawan, was captured within the limits of this town, For two years, while this war lasted, the town was in a constsnt state of alarm. At one time every house was burned, except the garrison houses. This town was the scene of the "Pierce Fight," one of the most disastrous battles to the English that occurred during the whole war.

May 26, 1777, the town voted to raise two companies to be ready on especial alarm. No town clerk is named prior to 1651, when Peter Hunt was chosen.

SEEKONK.—In 1812, the west part of Rehoboth was incorporated into a distinct township, and called by its ancient name, Seekonk. This word is the Indian name for black, or wild goose. This town is properly the ancient Rehoboth, it being the place where the first settlement was made. The town, or first settlement was built in a semicircular form, around what is now Seekonk common. This circular was afterwards called the "ring of the town." This town suffered severely during the "Indian," or "King Philip's war." Two days after the celebrated Pierce Fight, a party of Indians crossed the river and burned the village, destroying 40 houses and 30 barns. These houses were around the "ring of the town." Only two houses were left standing—the garrison-house and another at the south end of the common.

The Congregational church of Seekonk, was the earliest, and for a long time the only church in Rehoboth. The Baptist church was organized Nov. 27th, 1794, consisting of 40 members. Capt. Thomas Willett, who came over to this country in 1630, was buried in the limits of this town He was quite a young man when he arrived, but became quite a distinguished man in the colony, When the Dutch surrendered New York to the English, Capt. Willett was sent for by her Majesty's commissioners to assist them in organizing the new government. He was the first English Mayor of New York. After a few years' residence in New York, he returned to Swansea, where he died in 1674.

Agriculture is the principal business of the town.

SOMERSET.—This town was set off from Swansea in 1790, and incorporated under the present name The Indian name was "Shewanet," previous to its incorporation it was called the "Shewanut Purchase." The Old Colony and Newport Railroad pass through this town. At the northern part of the village the depot is located where the bridge crosses the Taunton river.

SWANSEA.—A portion of this town was originally comprehended within the limits of ancient Reheboth. It forms a part of the tract called by the Indians "Wannamoisett," situated in this town and Barrington, R. I. This town was incorporated in 1677, and then included within its limits the present towns, Somerset, Barrington, and the greater part of Warren, R. I. The town derived its name from "Swan sea," in Wales, and was so spelled in the earliest records. In 1649, Obidiah Holmes, and several others, having embraced the Baptist sentiments, withdrew from Mr. Newman's church, and set up a separate meeting of their own. The attempt to break them up, and the persecutions they met with, only increased their numbers. In 1663 they were much strengthened by the arrival of Rev. John Myles and his church. In the same year Mr. Myles formed a Baptist church in Reheboth (the 4th in America). It was organized in the house of John Butterworth, and commenced with seven members. These, and subsequent proceedings, were considered such an evil by the rest of the inhabitants, that an appeal was made to the Plymouth Court to interfere. Each member of this new church was fined £5, and prohibited from worship for a month. They were also advised to remove from Rehoboth, to some place where they would not prejudice any existing church. They accordingly moved to Wannamoisett.

Capt. Thomas Willett, a magistrate, and a man of great ability and enterprise, having large possessions at Narragansett, near by, came and settled here. Hugh Cole and some others followed. Capt. Willett became subsequently the first English Mayor of New York. He and Mr. Myles may be justly styled the fathers of the town

In 1670 it was ordered that the lands should be proportioned according to three ranks. Persons of the first rank were to receive three acres; of the 2nd, 2 acres; of the 3rd, 1 acre In admitting inhabitants, the select-men were to decide to which rank they should be apportioned. This singular division existed nowhere else in New England. At a town meeting, Dec. 19, 1673, it was voted unanimously "that a school be forthwith set up in this town for teaching of grammar, rhetoric, arithmetic, and the tongues of Latin, Greek and Hebrew; also, to read English, and to write, and that the salary of £40 per annum, in current country pay, be duly paid; and that Mr. John Myles, the present Pastor of the church here assembling be schoolmaster, otherwise to have power to dispose of the same to an able schoolmaster during said Pastor's life."

This town will be memorable as the place where the first English blood was shed in "King Philip's War." On Sunday, June 20th, 1675, King Philip permitted his men to march into Swansea and annoy the English by killing their cattle, in hopes to provoke them to commence the attack, for it is said that a superstition prevailed among them that the side who shed the first blood should finally be conquered. The Indians were so insolent that an Englishman finally fired upon one of them, and wounded him The Indians upon this, commenced open war. As soon as the intelligence of this massacre reached Boston, a company of foot, under Capt. Henchman, and a troop, under Capt. Prentice, immediately marched for Mt. Hope, and being joined by another company of 110 volunteers, under Capt. Moseley. They all arrived at Swansea, June 28th, where they joined the Plymouth forces, under Capt. Cudworth Mr. Miles' house being garrisoned, was made head-quarters. About a dozen of the troop went immediately over the bridge, where they were fired upon out of the bushes, and one killed and one wounded. The Englssh forces then pursued the enemy a mile or two, when the Indians took to the swamp, after having lost about a half dozen of their number. The troop commenced their pursuit of the Indians next morning. They passed over Mile's bridge and proceeded down the river till they came to the narrow of the neck, at a place called Keekamuit, or Kickamuit. Here they found the heads of eight Englishmen that the Indians had murdered, stuck on poles; these they buried. On their arrival at Mount Hope, they found that place deserted.

TAUNTON.—The first Englishmen who traversed the soil of this ancient town (called by the Indians Cohannet) are beleived to have been Edward Winslow and Stephen Hopkins, on their visit to Massasoit, in 1621. They found it depopulated by the plague of 1612. At Tetiquet and Nemanset there were Indian Villages. The territory of Tetiquet, which formerly included the towns of Berkley and Raynham, was claimed by the sachem of Tetiquet. In this territory there were no Indian settlements, except in a small part of Raynham. The country on the river appears to have been thickly settled, and the land cleared on both sides for a considerahle distance. At the head of the list of purchasers of Taunton, appears the name of Henry Uxly. Who he was, does not appear. His house and lot were bought by Richard Williams, who may, in some sense, be considered the father of Taunton, as he was in the place before the purchase of Miss Pool. He was a Welchman, and it is not improbable he was a relative of Roger Williams. A tradition has always existed in the family that he was connected by blood with Oliver Cromwell.

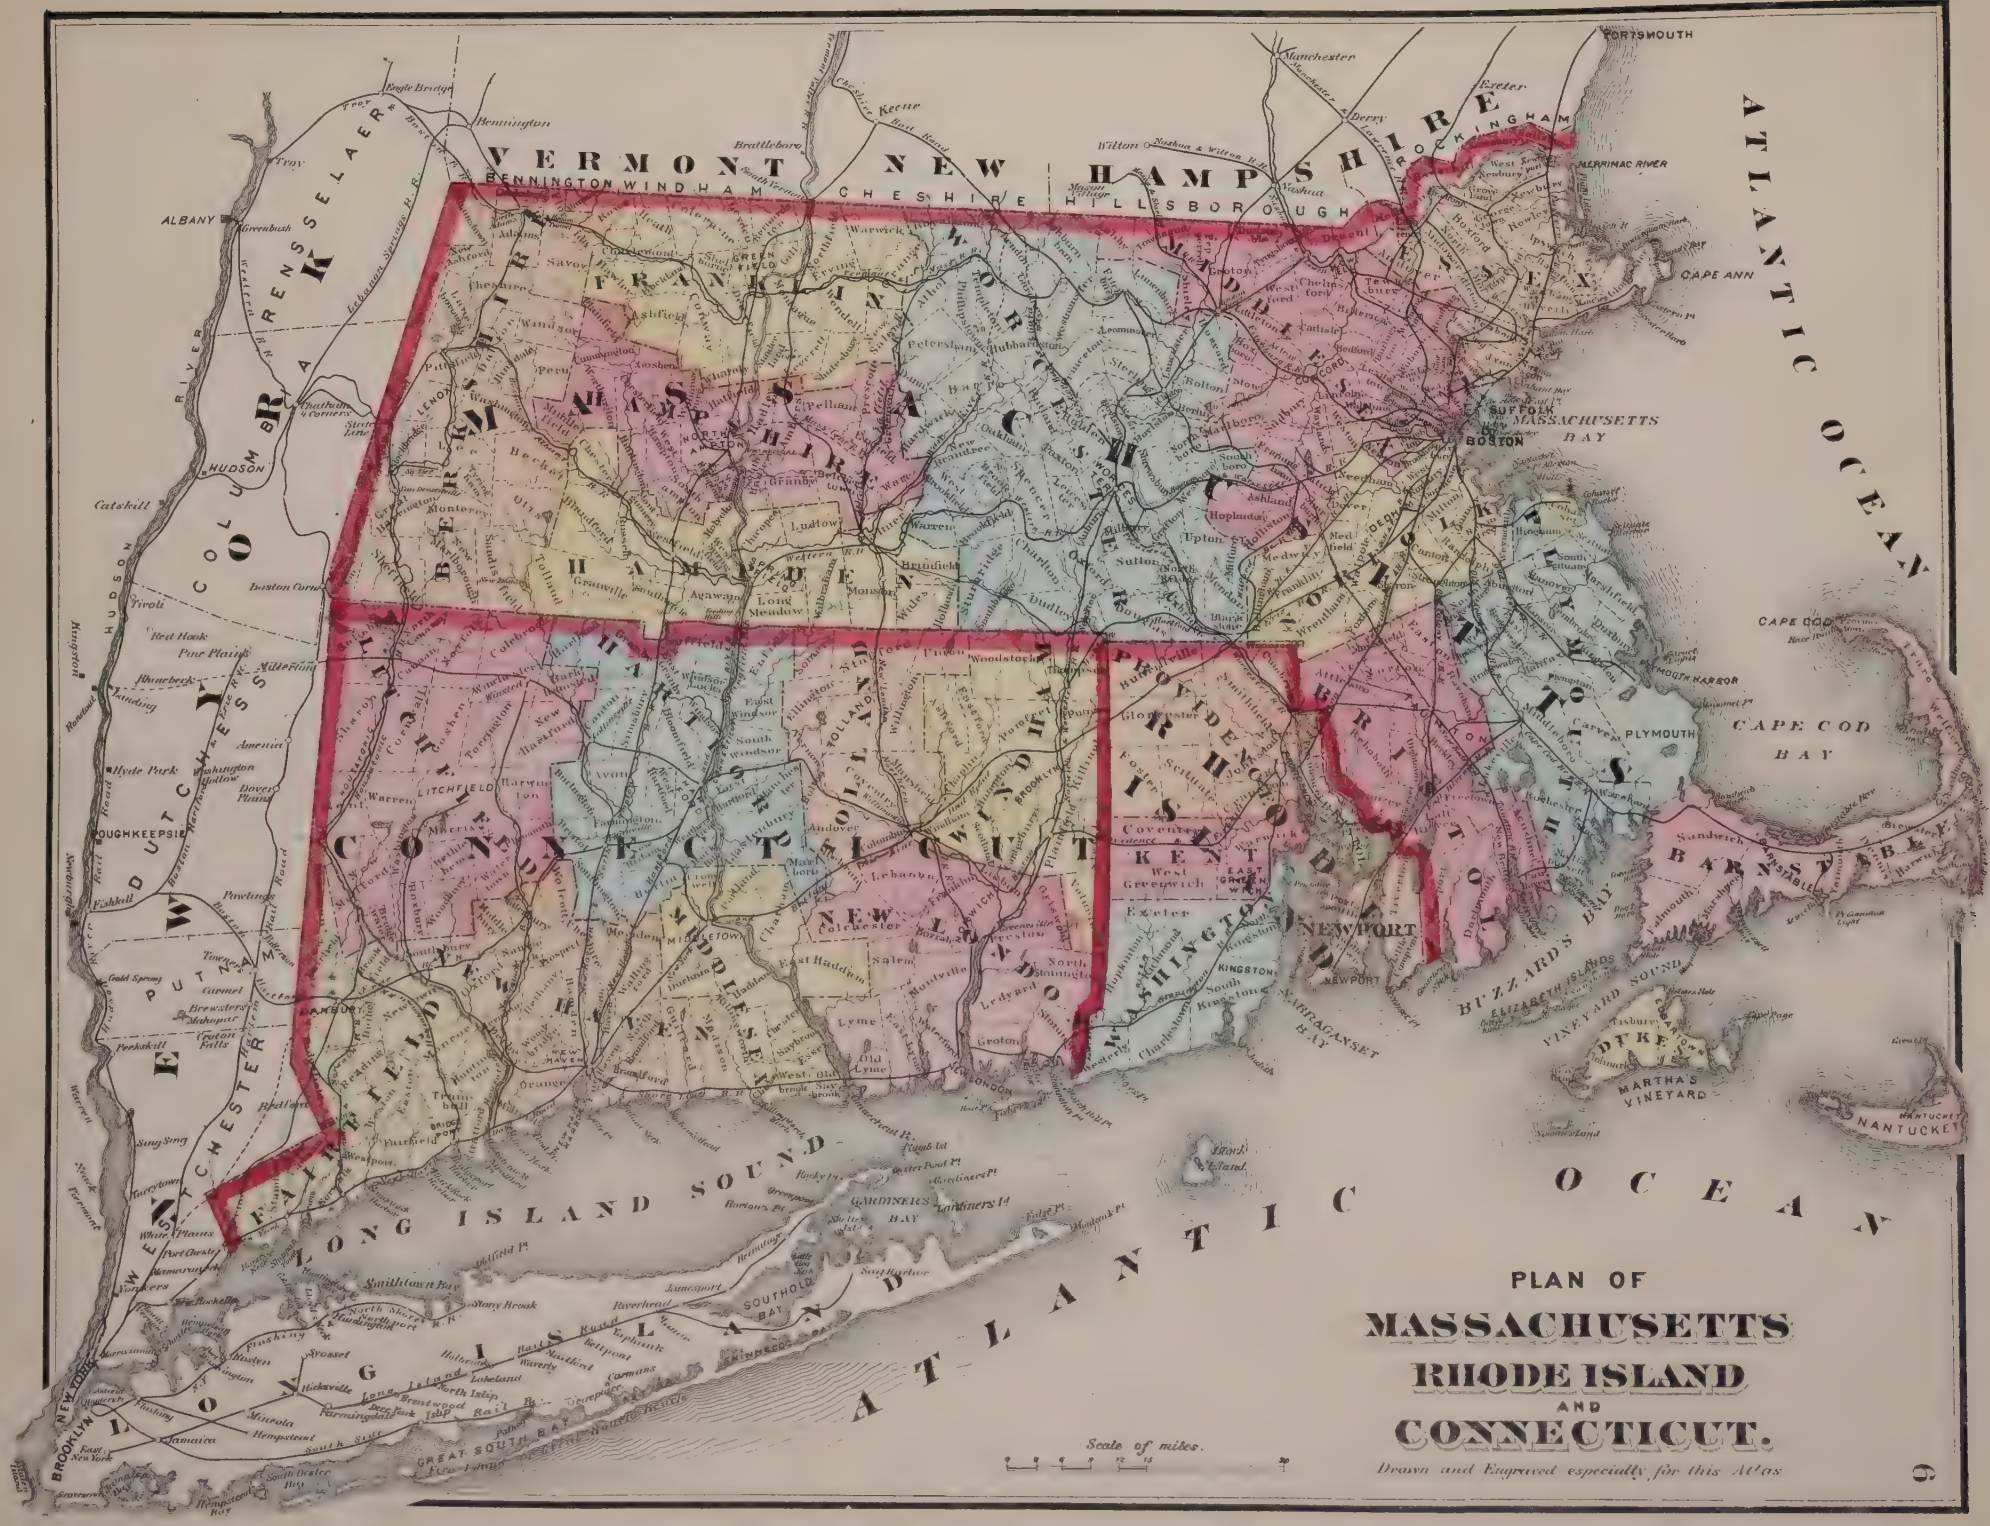

The inland situation of Taunton prevented for some time much accession to the number of settlers. The first settlers, with few exceptions, were from Somersetshire and Devonshire, and many of them from Taunton, England. The first purchase was made in 1637, and confirmed afterwards. This was called the Tetiquet Purchase, this being the Indian name for the great river of Taunton, about this period of its settlement. Miss Elizabeth Pool, a lady of family and fortune, from Taunton, in Somersetshire, England, conceived the bold design of occupying the territory of Cohannet. Her desire to plant another church in the American Wilderness, appears to have been the motive that induced this pious puritan lady to encounter all the dangers and hardships of forming a settlement in the midst of the Indians. She died in 1654, and her kinsmen placed over her grave a stone, with an inscription commemorative of her virtues. A monument has since been erected, by the ladies of Taunton, in her memory. It is in Mount Pleasant cemetery, and bears the following inscripiion: "The females of Taunton have erected this monument in honor of Elizabeth Pool, foundress of the town of Taunton, in 1637. Born before the settlement of America, in England, 1589. Died at Taunton, May 21, 1654." The inscription on the ancient monument was as follows: "Here rest the remains of Miss Elizabeth Pool, a native of Old England, of good family, friends and prospects, all of which she left in the prime of her life, to enjoy the religion of her conscience, in this distant wilderness. A great proprietor of the township of Taunton; a chief promoter of its settlement and incorporation. A. D., 1759, about which time she settled near this spot, and having employed the opportunytye of her virgin state in piety, liberality of manner, died May 21st, 1654, aged 65, to whose memory this monument is gratefully erected by her next of kin, John Borland, Esq., A. D. 1771."

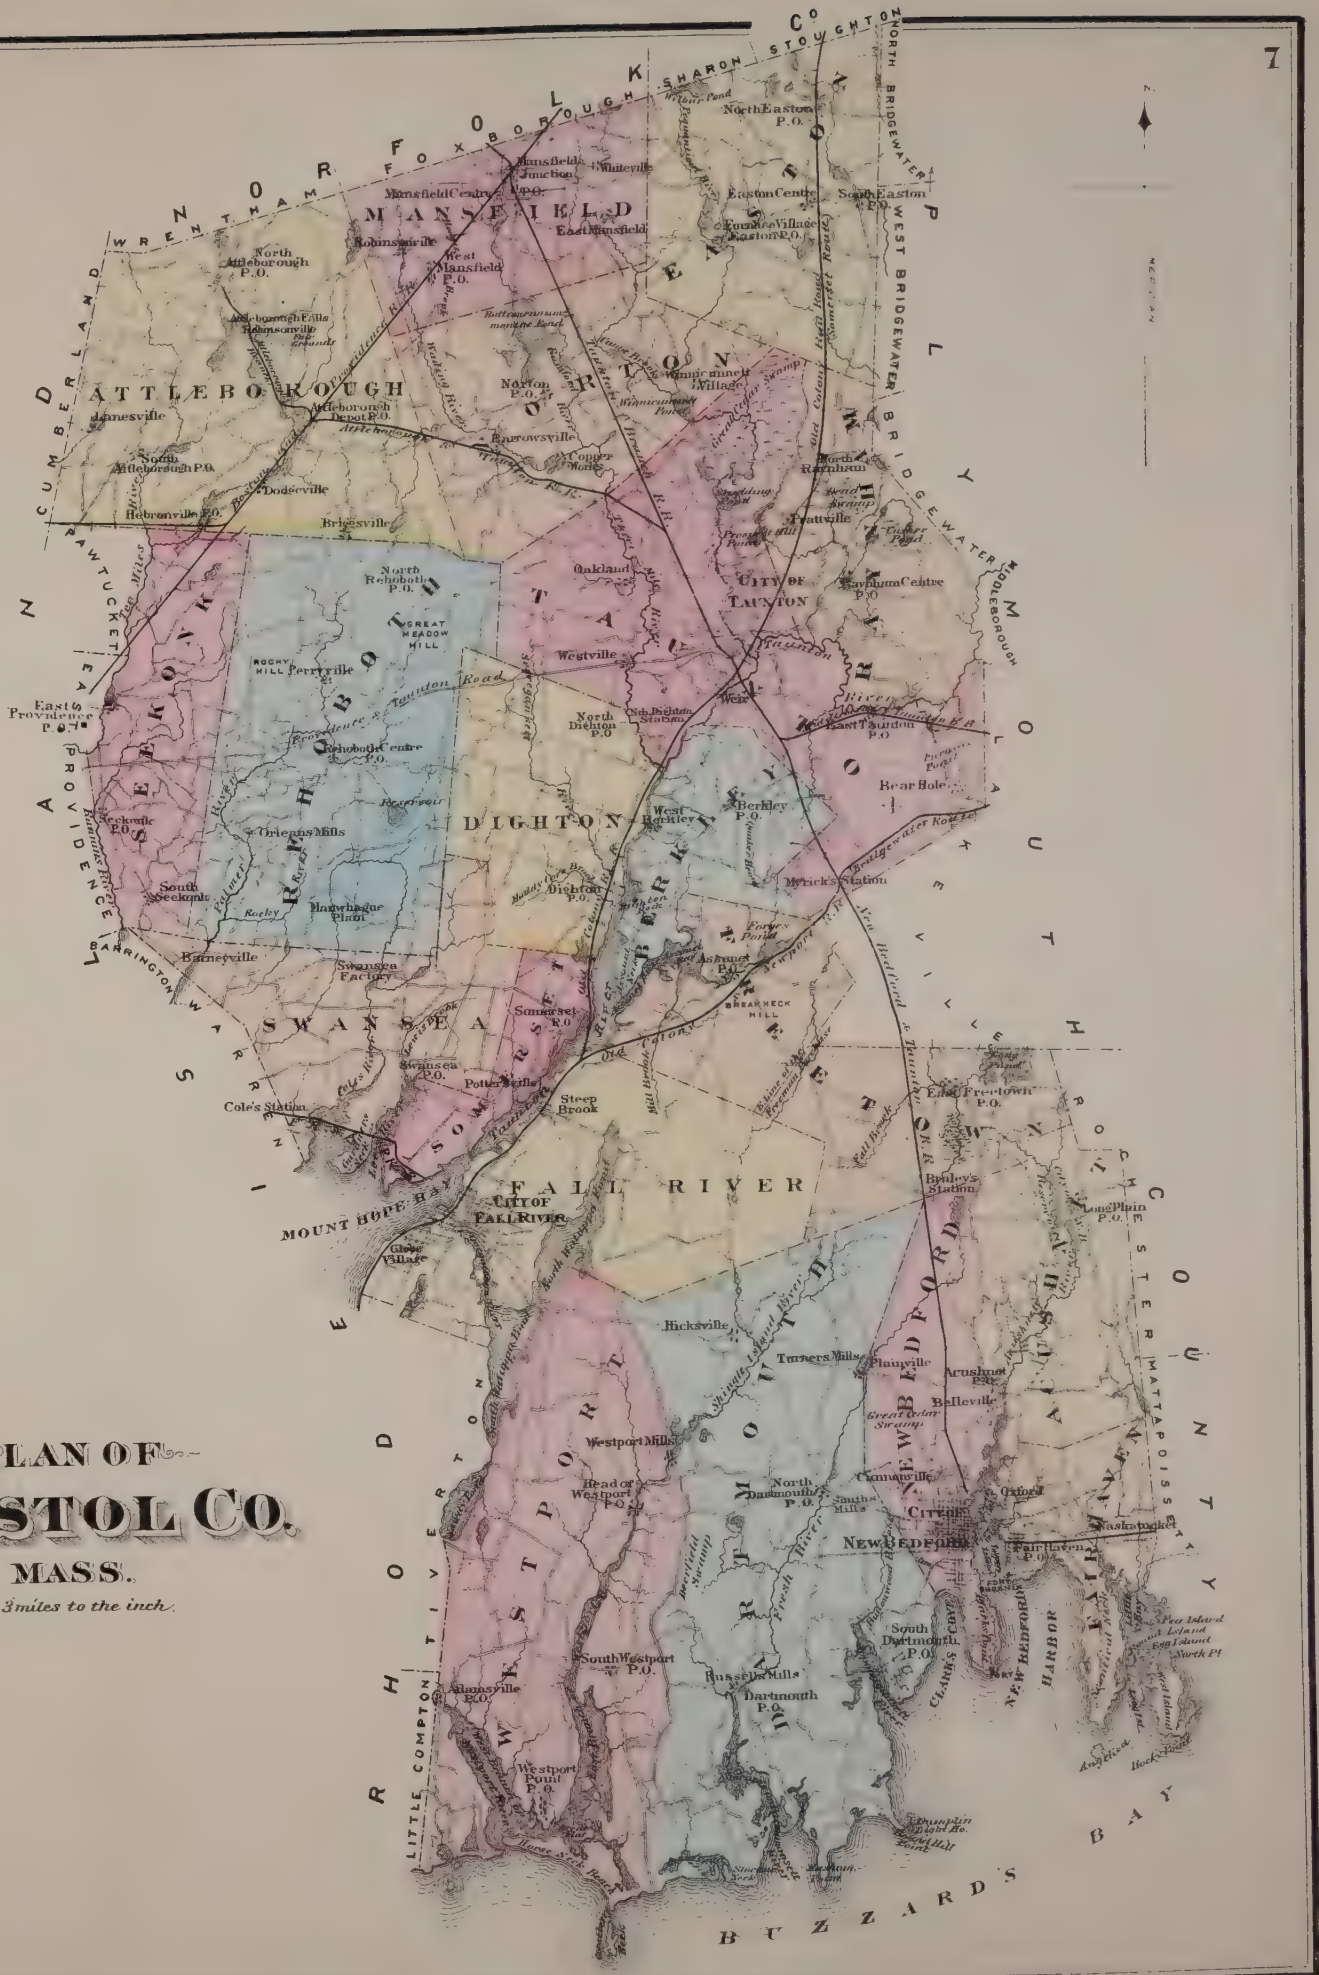

Rev. William Hooke, who must be considered the first Pastor of the Taunton church, was born about 1600. He married the sister of Edward Whalley, a Maj.-Gen'l in the Parliamentary army, one of the regicides, so called for being one of the judges who condemned Charles I. to death About 1640, Mr. Hooke left Taunton, and moved to New Haven, from whence, in 1656, he returned to England. He was received in the family of the Lord Protector, Oliver Cromwell, as domestic chaplain. After the restoration of Charles II. he was silenced for non-conformity, and died in London in 1677.

Among the first purchasers of Taunton might be mentioned Rev. Francis Doty, Henry Uxly, Benj. Wilson, William Coy, George Hall, George May, Richard Williams, Elizabeth Pool and her brother William. There were some eighty purchasers all told. The first white child born in town was one John Dean. He was born about 1639. He died during the great snow, Feb. 18, 1717. His gravestone may be seen in the graveyard, at the "neck of land."

Robert Treat Paine, a poet of some celebrity, was born in this town, Dec. 9, 1773. His father was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

WESTPORT.—This town was originally a part of Dartmouth. It was incorporated as a separate town in 1789 The town is situated at the entrance of Buzzards bay, at the head of the Nokohoch river. Acoaxet, now a flourishing maratime village, was once quite a place of resort by the Indians. Westport has been considerably interested in the whaling business, and has furnished many sea captains and sailors. There is some manufacturing in town; aside from this agriculture and seafaring are the main pursuits.
